

Aritco Launches New Lift for Smaller Homes

Award-winning Swedish lift company Aritco has unveiled its smallest and most compact home lift yet, the Aritco HomeLift Compact. Designed with space-efficiency in mind, its footprint takes up as little as a square meter, making it compatible with even the smallest house where space is limited.

The Aritco HomeLift Compact is quick and easy to install as it comes in pre-cut parts, and its lift shaft can span up to six floors of a house. It has the capacity to carry two people and it's very energy efficient, using a similar amount of power every year as an average washing machine or dishwasher.

"All homes deserve the convenience and accessibility offered by a home lift, but many don't have enough space for one," says David Schill, Marketing Director at Aritco Lift. "The solution is the new Aritco HomeLift Compact, our most space-efficient lift yet. Its Scandinavian design, customizable features, and digital connectivity ensure that there are no compromises, despite its compact size."

Create your own, bespoke lift

The lift is fully customizable so you can personalize it to suit your taste and home interior. The DesignWall, the signature feature of Aritco's home lifts, has eight different patterns by established Scandinavian designers to choose from and there's also a mirror option. Acoustic black felt panels made from recycled bottles line the lift shaft behind the DesignWall to ensure a silent ride through your home.

The seamless double glass doors can be fitted to the front or either side of the lift, depending on the layout of the room. If you need to access rooms on different floors from different directions, doors can be installed on three sides of the lift. For example, you could enter the lift from the front in your living room, but exit into your bedroom on the first floor from the left side through another set of doors.

The double glass doors are very elegant, but there's also an option for a swing door with handles in three neutral colors – white, black and aluminum grey. The glass doors and walls of the lift can be specified with clear or tinted glass, and there's a range of eight different designs for vinyl flooring.

The frame and the lift shaft of the Aritco HomeLift Compact come in three standard colors – Traffic White, Jet Black and Anthracite Grey. There are also over 200 different RAL colors to choose from at a small additional cost.

Aritco offers the latest technology to help you design your own bespoke Aritco HomeLift Compact. Its online LiftGuide allows you to create a custom design and then uses Augmented Reality to show you what it will look like once it is installed in your house.

Safe and sustainable

The latest smart home technology ensures the Aritco HomeLift Compact is one of the safest lifts on the market. The Aritco SmartLift App shows you where in your home the lift is stationed and will alert you when it needs a service. The SmartSafety system prevents any kind of accident and safety edges around the platform of the lift stops anything – or anyone – getting trapped.

Aritco's innovative 'screw and nut system' includes a self-locking function which means the lift will never fall down. In the unlikely event of an emergency, the lift has an alarm button and back-up batteries are included in case of power failure.

Sustainability is one of the hallmarks of the Aritco brand. 95% of all the component parts of the Aritco HomeLift Compact are recyclable and a Magnelis coating is applied to the steel frame to prevent it from rusting, thereby extending its life. The Aritco HomeLift Compact is also very energy efficient – it consumes less energy per year than a dishwasher or washing machine, even when used up to five times a day.
